History of Ecclesiastical Census

In 1851 the Home Office took a voluntary census of all places of worship in the country.

The census returns contain the name and denomination of each place of worship, the date of consecration or erection, the space available for public worship, total attendance on 30th March 1851 and the average attendances in the previous year.

The returns for Worcestershire are arranged by registration districts and are available to view on microfilm and are located in the Self-Service Area of The Hive. The originals are held at National Archives Kew reference HO129/383-393.

How to use the handlist

This handlist is divided into three sections.

Section 1 is a guide to the contents of the microfilm of the 1851 ecclesiastical census and indicates the running order of the film.

In section 2 the information given in section 1 has been rearranged by religious denomination.

In section 3 the information given in section 1 has been rearranged alphabetically by place name.

Finding the entry on the microfilm

The microfilm is arranged by registration district and the reference numbers in this handlist relate to the page numbers on the microfilm. To locate the required entry on the microfilm first make a note of the relevant reference number from this handlist and then wind the microfilm to the required number.

Notes

1. The baptists were founded by John Smythe, an English refugee in Amsterdam. They promoted adult baptism. The first Baptist Church in England was founded in London in 1612.

The general baptists believed that it was the responsibility of the individual to work for his soul's salvation. The Particular (or Strict Baptists) were formed in 1633 and believed in predestination and redemption only for particular believers.

The General Baptists divided in 1770 when the new connexion was formed. The old connexion became Unitarian. In 1891 the Particular Baptists and the new connexion merged to form the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland.

26. Willersley is in Gloucestershire.
27. Wordsley was in Staffordshire but is now in West Midlands.
28. The congregationalists believed that there should be no state interference in religion. They were also known as Independents. In 1972 they amalgamated with the Presbyterians to form the United Reform Church.

29. The Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion was a Methodist sect and was founded by Selina Hastings, Countess of Huntingdon in the 18th century.
30. See note no. 26 re Congregationalists.
31. Wall Heath was in Staffordshire but is now in West Midlands.
32. The Latter-Day Saints are more popularly known as the Mormons. They were founded in 1830 in the USA by Joseph Smith. The Church encourages their members to discover their ancestors so that they might be admitted to membership of the church posthumously.
33. John and Charles Wesley established a Methodist Society in 1740. There were several successions from the church. In 1797 the Methodist New Connexion was formed. The Independent Methodists were established in 1805, the Primitive Methodists in 1808.

39. Sparkbrook is now in West Midlands.
40. The Presbyterians proposed a church governed by committees, diocesan synods and a national assembly. This system was adopted in Scotland in 1560. It was not popular in England. In the 18th and 19th centuries many Presbyterians became Unitarians. In 1972 the Presbyterian Church of England amalgamated with the Congregationalists to form the United Reform Church.

41. Until the Reformation Roman Catholicism was the religion of England and Wales. Anti-catholic laws were gradually introduced. Full emancipation did not come until 1829.
42. The Society of Friends has its origins in the activities of George Fox in 1647. Also known as Quakers, the Friends were opposed to formal services and paid preachers.
43. The Unitarians believed in Christ as a prophet but not as divine. The sect expanded a great deal in the 17th and 18th centuries as Presbyterians joined it. Many chapels are Congregationalist based.
